

Leadership Scholars End of Project Feedback Session

Thank you for participating in the Leadership Scholars program this semester. Your hard work and dedication to the program, outside of your normally rigorous academic scheduling, is a testament to your desire for joyful learning.

This program is about growth and rigor. Your growth as an academic who desires to gain knowledge is paramount to the success of this program. Because of this, you will notice that there is not a “grade” assigned for your project. You are receiving “feedback”, not “grades”. The feedback is put into place so that you may acknowledge and build upon the skills that you are starting to master; as well as to acknowledge and diagnosticate the skills that are in need of improvement. Your role as the “joyful learner” is essential, so that you may have the inner desire to lucubrate over one of the seven global themes; be open to critique and commentary; while also being recognized for your perspicacity, industry, and achievement.

Please look over the items that are enclosed within this packet with an open mind. The people who assessed you, read your papers and gave comments hoping that they may help you in some way. ALL of them truly want to help you, and all of their suggestions came from a good and positive place. They came to see your presentations to support you and were open with their suggestions. All of the feedback is intended to be a source of inspiration and reflection as you move forward into your next project.

Your packet may contain the following:

Paper Assessment

- Copies of the Student Assessment Pages
  - Use this page so that you can see where you were able to achieve the highest marks, and where you need to improve
